5807 HUSAIN, Faisal H. Water for the saints of Baghdad: the hydrology of a sacred Ottoman geography. Journal of Early Modern History, 25 iv (2021) pp. 319-344. "Ottoman endeavors entailed active management of the Tigris and Euphrates waters to provision inland shrines with water and guard those on the riverbanks from damaging floods. With a hydraulic infrastructure, the Ottomans appropriated the memories of the saints of Baghdad and reinforced their territorial claims to the province in the face of a rising Shi'i power in Persia."
